Stockton, December 2, 2019 – IPEX, a leader in thermoplastic piping systems, announced today the grand opening of their New Stockton Distribution Center in the Central Valley of California.

This new facility nearly quadruples IPEX's available warehouse space in the region and allows us to store significantly more part numbers. A yard was also constructed for the storage of pipe, bringing more products closer to our customers and end-users.

"We listened to our customers and identified an opportunity to grow our presence on the West coast, by building this facility," says Travis Lutes, President & COO, IPEX. "We constantly explore ways to offer our customers an exceptional experience and that includes the ability to supply their needs in a timely and expedient manner."

Lutes continued, "In addition, this new facility has allowed us to double our employee base and solidify our commitment to the local community."
